Lecture On Mathematics Presented By Dr. Morse

Dr. Marsdon Morse, noted mathematician, spoke at Loyola last week. Later the same day he informally discussed various aspects of mathematics and physics, answering any questions from the students present. Dr. Morse ended the day with a faculty reception.

Marsdon Morse, who has at least seven honorary degrees, four from European universities, is one of the few Americans to have been elected to the French Academy of Science. He has taught mathemattics at Cornell, Brown and Harvard where he attained the rank of full professor before going to the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton.

Topic

Dr. Morse began his lecture by referring his topic "The Call to Scholarship" to a call to integrity. He compared the present day world, which is being called back to integrity by scientists, to the world at the time of St. Ignatius, which was called back to integrity by that spiritualist. He pointed out that civilization itself has an integrity, and that the present crisis in the world is the result of a crisis in this integrity.

Dr. Morse emphasized that something is lacking in the study of mathematics itself — it is the study of God, man and nature. He said the cause of the world's trouble today is the "failure to link the study of man and nature to the study of God," since a "knowledge of the separate parts does not add up to a knowledge of the whole."

He stressed that what we need in the world today is a combined Catholic-scientist and philosopher. "Science is not an object of worship, but a symbol of God."

Three Students To Attend College In Mexico City

Three Loyola College students are planning to attend Mexico City College for a six-week period this coming summer. The students, Charles Cox, Alan Granruth, and John Synodinos, are to leave Baltimore on June 5th, stop for three days in New Orleans, and register at the College on June 16th. They will travel by car.

Dean Approves

All the men have received approval from the Dean of Studies. They will take five full-time courses which will be taught in the English language. Mexico City College has received accreditation from the Universities of Georgetown, Notre Dame, and St. Louis.

The courses which they will be taking are: Mexican History pre-Revolution; Cultural Anthropology; and Pre-Columbian civilizations. Spanish may also be taken. Mexico City College also offers a nine-week course in Archaeology. Six weeks of this latter course are spent in field work.

This meeting of the Student Council was ruled invalid.

A.S.O. Ready To Accept Nominations To Offices

The Academy of Student Orientation is now accepting nominations for the offices of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. This was announced last week by the founder and present president of ASO, Jerome Langan.

Blanks for those who wish to become candidates for the above offices may be obtained from Langan, and must be returned before Friday, March 21. These nominations will then be submitted to a nominations committee of three members: Rev. Francis X. Knott, moderator; Jerry Langan; and Charles Fitzsimmons, chairman of the Activities Committee of the Student Council. The committee will also interview each candidate.

Purpose of ASO

The ASO was founded last year to insure that all incoming freshmen receive proper orientation — in this the organization works hand-in-hand with the Orientation Committee of The Student Council. (The present chairman of this committee is sophomore class president Joseph O'Hara.)

Besides planning and coordinating initiation week, the ASO is to publish a Student Activities Handbook and distribute it to the freshmen annually. This was done for the first time last September. Besides being president, Langan was also the first editor of this manual of co-curricular activities. The editor of next year's edition will be selected by the president elect.

(Last year the Student Council gave the ASO temporary approval for one year — the question of final sanction should come before the council shortly.)

"Green Key Society"

The ASO is sometimes called the "Green Key Society" and is modeled on the Hawkbrothers Association of St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia.

Officer Eligibility Clause In Agenda

A proposed election ordinance is scheduled for a vote by the student council tomorrow morning. Its most controversial point would ban the outgoing seniors from voting for the following year's president of the Student Council and president of the Athletic Association.

Other Provisions

Actually the new election ordinance makes provisions for a larger number of standardizations; the other important changes are:

1. The presidents of the upper classes, of the Student Council, and of the Athletic Association would be required to have a quality point average of 2.5. All other officers: 2.0.

2. The offices of vice-president of the classes will not be filled by the runner up in the election for president, as formerly, but will be elected separately.

Meeting Invalid

At the last "assembly" of the council members, the no vote for seniors provision was passed by a slim nine to seven majority. The validity of the meeting however was challenged by a block of seniors. The president of the council, Sal Marzullo, ruled that the meeting was in order, but a quirk in the constitution requires a two-thirds vote to sustain a ruling by the chair, and this was not obtained. (Normal practice is to require a two-thirds vote to overrule the chair.) So the vote was invalidated.

Under a division of the motion, most of the bill has already been passed. Unless the rest of this bill is passed soon, it will not become effective until next year.

(It is interesting to note that Sal Marzullo was swept into office last year by senior support — had this ordinance been in effect, Earl Logue would now be president of the Council.)

This ordinance was drafted by the Elections Committee under the direction of senior Jim Pallace.

Carnegie Gives Forstner Assistantship In Science

By Tim Himmelheber

James A. Forstner, a senior majoring in chemistry, has been awarded an assistantship to Carnegie Institute of Technology, located in Pittsburgh, Pa. This award is valued at $1500 per nine months and it also includes tuition. Jim was previously offered similar scholarships to the University of Florida and to Gainesville.

Begins Sept 16

Jim will be an instructor in the Institute's Department of Chemistry. There he will major in inorganic chemistry, and work toward his PhD. He begins his course of study next September 16.

In his four years at Loyola College Jim has distinguished himself in every undertaking in which he has engaged. Not only has he received several medals for outstanding scholastic work, but he has also participated in a wide range of co-curricular activities.

In activities, he is currently the president of the Glee Club, a member of the Chemistry and Physics Clubs. Jim was, until this semester, the Business Manager of the GREYHOUND. By way of honor societies, he has been elected to ASN, and to Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Last, but not least (especially when applying for a fellowship), Jim Forstner is a regular member of the Dean's List, and gets mostly A's.

Greyhound Bulletin

The Greyhound Bulletin is once again being put out on a regular schedule. Those who wish to place announcements in the Bulletin may put them in the GREYHOUND office or give them to John Kilbourne.

The deadline for such notices is normally 3 p.m. on the school day preceding the day on which the event is to take place.

All announcements should include the time and place of the event.

Dramatics Society

Due to the severe snow storm, the Province One-Act Play Contest at Georgetown University on February 21 was canceled. As of writing date no definite plans for rescheduling had been made.

The next production of the Dramatic Society will be "Cocktail Party" by T.S. Eliot, which has been cast and will be presented the beginning of May.

The GREYHOUND regrets any inconvenience from misinformation.

Green Addresses LIT On Chaucer

Dr. Richard H. Green of Johns Hopkins University was guest speaker at the recent LIT lecture on medieval literature. The main point of Dr. Green's talk was a point was a discussion of Chaucer Poet and Pilgrim.

Dr. Green also sketched briefly the way medieval authors utilized both biblical and classical sources in their works. These authors wrote on the assumption that there are two ways in which man gains his knowledge, as presented by two books: the Book of Nature, and the Book of Scripture.

In summary, Dr. Green noted that a modern reader must understand the tradition behind the allusions in medieval literature before he can understand the writings.

Editorials

Green and Grey

The sometimes effervescent, sometimes dilatory scene of Loyola's co-curricular activity has recently been stimulated by the appearance of a new organization, the Green and Grey. The need for this organization can be found in a universal admission: that our co-curricular scene has of late been far more dilatory than effervescent.

The purpose of the Green and Grey is to stimulate school spirit in every way possible. They have already acquired a Greyhound suit to serve as a mascot at athletic events. They have offered to make posters for any activity that requests them to do so. They are planning a combined lacrosse-baseball-track sports night for the end of March.

An impressive start — but tragically reminiscent of another organization, the Anti-Apathy Association, founded on similar principles during the basketball season last year, and already forgotten. Just how completely the AAA has been forgotten can be seen from the fact that the founders of the Green and Grey did found a new spirit organization, rather than reviving the old one.

The old adage "Well begun is half done" is misleading when applied to spirit clubs (like the AAA and the Green and Grey), because it is easier to found one than to keep it going.

The only thing that can keep this new organization in existence is firm determination on the part of John Healy, Tony Dorn, Father Murphy, et al, backed up by good support on the part of the student body in general.

That these men have that firm determination cannot be questioned. The question is: Will the student body support them?

the Kitchen Cynic

BY JIM MOLLOY

Adding to the plumbing facilities of this newspaper (see another column) we push through the suds left by Joy 'the detergent that makes dishwashing almost nice! and discover among the grease spots a few gems of wisdom to brighten your day.

Among the literati there is always someone to come along and claim that Shakespeare did not write the plays which have plagued students in English courses for years past. They point to things like the nonsense Latin in "Henry IV" and claim that "honorificabilitudinitatibus" is really an acronym for "hi ludi f. baconis etc." and that Francis Bacon wrote them. I make no wild claim such as this. I do assert that the driving force behind Shakespeare was one Patrick McCann a pub crony of Will's.

Pat McCann was an irresponsible poet who gave Shakespeare lessons in diction so that Will could get parts in Ben Jonson's plays. He also would recite his works to Will when well oiled and later did not insist upon credit them. Will being a kind-hearted sort gave Pat only one direct mention and that was in "Hamlet" Act III Sc. III where he has Hamlet say "New might I do it Pat."

But like so many other Irishmen Pat was too easy-going and his own work went down the drain.

John Yuhn, Lawrence Panico Lieutenants In Regular Army

Lawrence J. Panico Jr. and John T. Yuhn, two of the five cadets who have received direct commissions through the "Distinguished Military Student" program here at Loyola, are now serving as second lieutenants in the Army.

Larry Panico

Lieutenant Lawrence J. Panico Jr. received his commission on June 9, 1957. After taking ten days advanced leave, he reported to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, and there took the basic Officer's course. Having completed this course, he performed miscellaneous duties until November 13, when he was ordered to go to Fort Benning, Georgia, where he served as tactical officer for the Officer's Candidate School, and as assistant S3 (operations) for the Officer's Candidate Battalion. Lt. Panico is now underway to Verona, Italy, where he will be stationed for 27 months. He left for Italy on March 2, 1958 and will be joined by his wife and child as soon as he completes the arrangements for establishing his household. He will join the Southern European Task Force, a NATO unit, giving rocket support to the Italian army.

Jach Yuhn

Lieutenant John T. Yuhn also took his regular army commission on June 9, 1957 and took seven days advanced leave. He left for Fort Benning, Ga., where he performed miscellaneous duties until early in August when he began his basic Officer's course. Lt. Yuhn is in the process of taking Rangers training after which he will take Airborne training. He has already received orders to join the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, at the completion of these courses.

While here at Loyola, in his senior year, John Yuhn held the rank of Cadet Colonel and served as Regimental Commander. Larry Panico served as executive Officer under John Yuhn.

This June, five other cadets will receive direct commissions and will join Larry and Jack in pursuing their career in the United States Army.

There have been far too many snide remarks being passed of late which cast aspersions on that noble and honored campus institution known as the ROTC. You will find no such jibes in this column, boy.

These "Future Leaders" deserve nothing. Er . . . I mean, nothing but the highest credit. Why just the other day they were all over the campus playing a war game. Now the depth of the melting snow drifts made this effort very heroic indeed. Why, we saw one Junior standing up to his shade 34 spats in muddy water trying to contact some august officer by the name of "Tango," an affectionate nick-name of admiration, no doubt. Greater love than this hath no man.

There has been some nasty rumor to the effect that one group of these water logged warriors contacted, after much difficult radio gymnastics, the Diamond Cab Co. dispatcher who was trying to contact her cab-driving husband to tell him to bring home 3 lbs. of ground beef. Obviously this is a gross fabrication. We happen to know for a fact that it was 2½ lbs!

These are just a few of the harrowing adventures that these protectors of Democracy have to experience. Hats off to you heroes!

the Skeptic Tank

BY BOB PULA

One of the most fascinating prospects in the history of American free enterprise is before us. Now that an instrumentality of the Federal Government has chain-smoked its way through hearings which have determined that the leaders of America's tobacco industry have deceived the public in the matter of the healthy virtues of filter cigarettes, what will the nicotine pushers do about it? Particularly, what effect will this slap to the filter trap have on T.V. commercials? Will Madison Avenue receive instructions to do a neck-breaking turnabout and tell the truth? Will the Marlboro Man gouge out his tatoo for fear of blood poisoning? Stay with me awhile and consider the possibilities.

First, a truthful commercial from the makers of L & N.

"Live Nodding! Smoke an L & N! Friends, the makers of L & N urge you to smoke L & Ns, but at your own risk. From L & N you get a keener, hotter, tar-laden smoke. And this is what a real smoker wants. You see, in order to counteract the effect of the meddlesome filter (which only forces you to suck harder to get what you paid for) the makers of L & N have packed their product with the coarsest Burley they could find — tobacco that farmers formerly fed to rabid dogs to make them quiet at night. This switch guarantees you more of the nicotine and tars that first made Sir

Walter Raleigh an addict. Smoke an L & N!!!

(Loud, Heaven-suggesting music.)

"Oh, yes, friends. There's that matter of lung cancer. Do the medical reports bother you? Well, that's something you'll have to work out for yourself. But if you're a man, smoke an L & N!!!!"

Well, that would be refreshing but the prospect of hearing it on your T.V. set is mighty slim. (Longer, too, to filter the truth through the greater length of your credulity.) More than likely there will be a swing back to non-filter cigarettes, all decked out in new names. Viceroy will be out-ranked by "King" and the commercial will end:

"Hear the happy peasants sing
Everybody's smoking King."

ROTC

BY DICK PRODEY

Ability and long hours of practice and as a result eleven in a row. That is quite a record for the Loyola College rifle team, any team for that matter. After a strong start they have had little trouble compiling the best record in the team's history. However in a match last week against Western Maryland they were defeated 1360-1373. In the same match Bill Offutt grabbed highest average from Dick Love who has been top man since the beginning of the season. With an 11-1 record and the pressure off, they will meet Morgan at Morgan and Hopkins here for their last two matches.

P.T. for Juniors

Last summer the present ROTC seniors did exceptionally well in every phase of competition. However there was a definite need for improvement in the physical training department and as a result Fr. Hoggson and Col. Minot have set up a P.T. program for the juniors to prepare them for the six weeks of summer camp.

Swimmers Victorious In Mason-Dixons; Roanoke Gains Second In Close Tourney

Depth Is Prime Factor In Hard-Earned Triumph

Depth

Although the Hounds were able to capture only one gold medal, depth and balance proved to be the deciding factors, which enabled the Loyola tank men to emerge as victors. It was the squad's ability to occupy eleven positions in the finals which turned the tide in their favor.

The mermen's success was due, also, at least partially to the all-out efforts of three men. Had the finals progressed in the same manner as the time trials, Loyola and Roanoke would have tied 30-30. However, Joe Harrington and Seely and Pete Powley all bettered their previous times and gained the added points, which eventually netted another trophy for Loyola.

Tournament

In one of the closest tournaments in several years, the Loyola swimming team outscored six Mason-Dixon rivals with a total accumulation of 33 points. Roanoke, the dark horse in the meet finished second with 30 points followed by Randolph-Macon and favored American U., with 26 and 21 markers, respectively.

Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets got the contest off to a fast start in the opening event on the program. Their medley-relay team, which consisted of Chuck Sharman, Jim Athern, Pete Lau, and Al Greenburg, covered the 400 yard course in just 4 minutes 33.7 seconds, a mere one-tenth of a second off the conference second, set last year by Catholic U.

Loyola garnered its only individual win of the day in the 1-meter diving event. Tony Dorn, 1956 and '57 champ, easily made it three in a row with a total of 119.687 diving points. His closest competition was Jim Hawkins of American with 103.83 total points.

The small contingent from Roanoke C. turned out to be the big surprise of the tournament. Will Caterson and Bob Getley teamed up for 12.5 points apiece, which captured individual scoring honors for the day. George Krapp was high for the Hounds with 7.5.

There was a note of irony, however, in this well deserved Greyhound win. For this '58 team, which piled up a 6-2 over-all record and the first tank championship in four years, had begun all its meets with a prayer to St. Jude, "The Patron of Hopeless Cases."

• Tank Talk •

By Hugh McKenna

Tony Dorn and George Krapp, two swimmers who will be back next season, were the leading scorers on the splash squad. Although they differ in their specialties — Dorn is a diver and Krapp, a freestyle sprinter. This duo has coupled to help Coach Bill Klarner's swim squad to its 6-2 record prior to the M-D meet.

Krapp is a tremendously versatile swimmer and exhibits an amazing amount of drive and spirit of competition. He has been a consistent performer in the 50 and 100-yd. freestyle and is the anchor man on the freestyle relay team.

Dorn, a graduate of Loyola High, is noted as one of the top divers in the area. In his 3 years of swimming for the Greyhounds, Dorn has been defeated only once; and by a Georgetown diver whom he had defeated before. However, it seems as if Tony isn't contented with just using the spring-board for accumulating points, but he also swam the breast-stroke and aided on the medley relay team.

This pair can be found in the water nearly all year round. Dorn swims and dives for one of the local city teams during the summer and Krapp is a lifeguard, besides participating on the track team.

Tony Dorn and George Krapp led the Hound swimmers to a 3-0 conference record.

Talent Tells The Tale In Natator Success Story

By Bill Lohnes

"Just a little talent, will go a long way"—an appropriate title for the victory song that Greyhound swimming coach Bill Klarner has been singing ever since the tank season began, a way back on December 12. Two years ago the Green and Grey natators didn't win a meet. Last season, the squad managed to squeeze three victories, out of eight engagements and finish a distant third in the Mason-Dixon tournament. This year, with a cluster of fresh, new material and several tested veterans at his disposal, coach Klarner has directed his charges through the most successful Loyola natator campaign since 1954.

The season record stands at six wins against two lone setbacks. All six of the triumphs were by overwhelming scores including a 55 to 31 conquest of Catholic U., defending M-D champion, and a crushing 65 to 20 defeat of American U., which finished a close second in last year's tourney. The two losses were to V.M.I. and La Salle, perennial Atlantic Coast swimming powers.

Two big reasons for the tankster's seasonal outcome are the Freshman Powley brothers, Seeley and Pete. Seeley has distinguished himself as a distance man, while Pete made his name as a sprinter. Two other Freshmen standouts are Henry Zerhusen and Paul Karpers.

Naturally, no club could get along without seasoned performers. George Krapp, Joe Harrington, John Allen in the freestyle, Tony Dorn, Jerry Klebe in the diving, and backstroke Mike and butterfly Bernie Karpers supplied this punch.

With the loss of only four men through graduation, expectations of next season are even brighter than this year.
